Subject: Remco statement regarding the chemical substances listed in California Proposition 65 (latest update March 19, 2021)

In answer to customers' inquiries regarding California Proposition 65, Remco has an update regarding our products and the 1,000+ chemicals on the list as of March 2021.

Several items manufactured by Remco and Vikan are known to be non-compliant with California Proposition 65. The attached list contains part numbers and names of all non-compliant products.

We do not routinely test our approved suppliers' products for the listed substances, nor do we put limits on these chemicals in our product specifications. However, Remco can confirm that having reviewed information and the declarations from our suppliers, the chemicals mentioned are expected to be present in the products disclosed on the attached list. The information provided in this document is correct to the best of our knowledge, information, and belief at its date of publication.

Items listed in Attachment 1 are considered to be Prop 65 non-compliant. Items from Remco and Vikan not listed in this document are considered Prop 65 compliant. Please feel free to contact us if you need additional information about a specific item.

The information given in this letter is designed only as guidance and is not to be considered a warranty of the recipient of this document to verify its validity at all times.

Thank you,
